INTRODUCTION
In conveying information to the public or general audience, mass media have a very important role as a channel of information. Various kinds of knowledge and information can be disseminated easily through mass media because this medium serves as an introduction that can reach a wider audience, both institutions and individuals, in a balanced, cheap, free, and voluntary manner (Yuliyanti, 2023). In interacting with the audience, many people transfer to the digital world because the information conveyed and obtained can be faster, cheaper, and more efficient than delivering information using conventional media. Some media filter the news, and this causes us to quickly obtain all kinds of information, even though there are still many that are not the same as the facts that occur on the ground. All information can be received quickly through one of the media, namely online media (Lubis, 2022).

Outlining examination is one of the text investigation strategies that falls into the class of constructionist research. This worldview sees the truth of public activity as not a characteristic reality but rather the consequence of development. Consequently, the convergence of examination on the constructionist worldview is to find how the occasion or the truth is built and how the development is framed. Framing deals with news production processes, media organization frameworks, and routines (Mulyana, 2002). How events are framed and why they are understood in a certain frame or frame and not others is not solely due to the structure of journalists but also to the work routines and media institutions, directly or indirectly directly affects the meaning of events (Pan & Kosicki, n.d.).

The product of online journalism is online media. Cyberjournalism is another name for online journalism. The behavior of readers of online media is also the same as that of newspaper readers because they also read lead leaders and headline readers, and this causes the word online journalism to be referred to as title journalism. Short and concise is the format of the news body. Because of related writings or news, completeness is maintained (linkage) (Wahyuni, 2021). Framing is a depiction of reality in which the truth of an event is not completely hidden but slightly twisted by accentuating certain elements, using terminology that has a certain meaning, and using images, caricatures, and other illustrative tools (Hasanah, 2014).

In framing, editors-in-chief and journalists are two of the elements that play an important role. The way a journalist reports an event is greatly influenced by the amount of interest and attention given to it. Journalists being able to make priorities is one of the roles of gatekeepers, and journalists can also ignore or raise events that are considered important according to their wishes. The substance of the problem can also be determined by journalists, who hold the role of gatekeepers (Khalili, 2017).

Basically, in every report, the media has a certain frame. ToKnowing how news framing on online media portals asahankab.go.id is related to news, this study discusses the analysis of news framing by regional secretaries closing the PWL Asahan 2023 old crack tournament. Framing analysis itself is a centralized analysis. Attention to how the media packages and frames news. That process is generally This is done by selecting certain events to report and emphasizing certain aspects from events through the help of words, accentuations, images, and other devices. Refer toIn the process of how the media packages or frames the news, the author examines the news aboutclosing of the PWL Asahan 2023 Old Crack tournament.

The process of delivering information using internet media is referred to as online journalism. News sites and online media are its channels and mediums. On January 17, 1998, Mark Drudge tried to publish the sex and affair scandal of Monica Lewinsky and US President Bill Clinton, which was rejected by News Week magazine, and then he took the initiative to upload it to the Drudge Report website with the help of a modem and laptop, and this caused everyone who could access the internet to know the scandal story called Monica Scandal. After conventional journalism (newspapers that are print media journalism) and broadcast journalism (television and radio journalism), the third generation of journalism is online journalism. Internet journalism, or cyber journalism, is a name that is often used to refer to online journalism. Journalism, online, website, and internet are some terms that can express the definition of online journalism (Djatnika, 2020).

The dissemination of news or information, actually through the process of covering and writing in mass media, is the definition of journalism. "Reporting on an event" is the practical meaning of journalism. The state of connection (connectivity), which refers to the world wide web (www) and the internet, is the meaning of online. As long as there is an internet network, anytime and anywhere information can be accessed using an internet language called online (Resmiati, 2018). In 1955, Beterson introduced the concept of framing. Originally, a frame was defined as a conceptual structure or collection of ideas that organizes political perspectives, programs, and discourses and serves as a standard framework for understanding reality. Goffman expanded on this idea in 1974, defining frames as strips of behavior that lead people through reality (Sidabutar, 2022).

The framing aspect is twofold. Making a selection of reality or facts is the first thing. When facts are chosen, there is a possibility of news being omitted. In addition, certain elements are emphasized. By adopting certain perspectives, choosing certain facts, and ignoring others. As a result, each event has a unique structure. Second, record relevant information. The procedure for informing the public about the selected information certain aspects are emphasized to get greater attention than others. Salient realities are more likely to be recognized and influence the audience's perspective on a situation (Al Furqon, 2020).

From the brief description above, it is interesting to conduct an in-depth study related to an analysis of the framing of the closing news of the PWL Asahan 2023 Old Crack tournament. A study of the news is analyzed and interpreted using the framing analysis method (framing analysis) model Zhongdang Pan and Gerald M. Kosicki The framing model introduced by Pan and Kosicki, it is one of the most popular and numerous models. Used the model itself was introduced in an article in the Journal of Political Communication. It was originally a paper presented at the International Communications Association Convention in Florida. For Pan and Kosicki, this framing analysis can be one of the alternatives to analyzing media texts in addition to quantitative content analysis Framing analysis, seen as the public's perception of an issue or policy is constructed and negotiated.

According to Pan and Kosicki, there are differences in topic and theme. Themes are ideas that connect different parts of meaning into the whole story coherent. Structural dimensions of the framing approach according to Pan and Kosicki's model analysis has four dimensions: syntactic structure, script structure, thematic structure, and structure Rhetorical (Pan & Kosicki, n.d.).

In detailing specific policy centered issues, every medium has its own edge. By utilizing outlining examination, we can realize the casings conveyed by the broad communications.
